THINGS TO CONSIDER

This is just a partial list of the many national organizations that offer referrals or support for those facing crisis pregnancies or struggling with a past abortion. Local pregnancy centers and post-abortion support groups may also be listed in the Yellow Pages under “Abortion Alternatives.”

While efforts were made to check out all of the organizations listed here, inclusion in this list does not necessarily constitute an endorsement by the Elliot Institute of any organization, their philosophies, or their practices.

Finding the Right Help

Post-abortion ministries may offer a variety of different formats and approaches. Some are staffed by volunteers who offer peer counseling, while others are staffed by professional therapists or counselors. An organization may offer support in a group setting, a Bible-study format, or one-on-one with a counselor or spiritual director. The client should ask lots of questions in order to find a group or counselor with whom she feels comfortable.

Counseling services are confidential and, in many cases, free.

Some people, especially those with a history of psychological problems or other trauma that may complicate healing, may need the help of a professional counselor. They should be put in touch with a therapist who has experience and training specifically in the field of post-abortion counseling. A post-abortion counseling ministry may be able to refer clients to a professional counselor if they do not have someone on staff.
